The EF! AU is produced to aid the sharing of news, information and ideas amongst those interested in taking action. It is edited by a different collective each year to avoid the centralisation of power and information. We welcome submissions and articles (max 150 words) so if you’ve set up a group, taken action or want to publicise a campaign or project please let us know. No matter how big or small it seems, we’d like to share your news and inspiration. Feature articles and ideas are also appreciated.

The philosophy behind Earth First! is the use of non-hierarchical organisation and direct action to confront, stop and eventually reverse the forces responsible for the destruction of the Earth and it’s inhabitants.

It is not a cohesive group or campaign rather a convenient banner for those interested in these ideas.

Liverpool v Cargill

Cargill is the world’s largest privately owned company, controlling 25% of the world’s grain harvest, also one of the top three food and drink corporations, it has concerns in all aspects of food production; processing, feed and fertilisers, transportation and commodity trading. Cargill’s operations include the UK’s only soya crushing plant, located in Liverpool. The docks and this plant are the main entry point for G MO’s into the country. “5th-10th March 2001 What a wonderful week........We were few and yet we did much!”

In six group meetings Liverpool against GenetiX was born and the week of actions was organised. Actions spread through Crosby, Bootle, Seaforth Docks and Liverpool City centre. The whole week had flavours of hard work, persuasion, learning, acceptance and a hint of glory by the end of it.

We woke people up at Crosby on Tuesday with huge painted foam mutant animals and vegetables outside and inside Sainsbury’s. Locals thought they were dreaming when they saw a giant pea-pod full of money chasing a small winged banana to make sure she didn’t run into the road!

There were public meetings in both Bootle and Liverpool City Centre, by two speakers who offered us alternatives, although there weren’t a million locals the ones that were there made themselves plain and thus lively dialogues ensued.

Thursday we bombarded Bootle shoppers with info about Cargill’s. The overgrown fish smoking a cigarette hung around with many mutant vegetables that day and they got many strange looks from shoppers and passers-by! As with the rest of the week the locals were mostly really friendly and interested, the coppers were chilled and many signed petitions.

We had police interest all week but on Friday in Seaforth the police got a little nervous and the port coppers kept us under close observation, while two of our lot and one of our camera technicians (!) were escorted to meet the PR lady from Cargill’s who was stunned that anyone thought they could be seen as bad and tried to tell us that they had a good environmental reputation and that the locals liked them - we gently told them otherwise. Cargill were unable to answer to their Corporate Crimes and hadn’t heard of Corporate Watch and said they would be looking on the website to read the briefing about them. H a - H a -

Many good slogans were produced during the week my personal favourite being ‘Don’t work for Cargill’s it’s SHITE’

“Work together and be effective or these companies will keep on having the edge, and all we will be, is an irritation and fodder for the justice system.”

A rip-roaring riot of rabble-rousing around the globe

A wobbles perspective: Disguising sofa cushions and banners as rubbish and dodging cops, a few wobbles eventually emerged from a small dark alley. As they chanted, shouted and unfurled banners free money began to fly and cheers and shouts in Oxford Street greeted them.

Banners were used in the front and to the sides of the crowd to form a block some padding was handed out and other wobbles joined. As the block advanced up Great Portland Street it became more raucous, it was really working, a line of riot cops retreated. Then onto John Lewis, where came the first real confrontation.

The blows rained down but the padding held and again the cops retreated. Next an attempt at the lines guarding those trapped at Oxford Circus. The cops struck back their lines being 2 deep. At one point they were pushed back and surrounded on both sides by the crowd.

On New Bond St, numbers swelled to about 1000. Then whilst leaving Soho, cops stood 3 deep and were extremely heavy. A decision to retreat was made to prevent the crowd being trapped. Out manoeuvring the cops people dispersed to avoid arrest.

Hopefully more wobbles will be encouraged to form and help facilitate crowd movement to effectively oppose the cops, creating better mass street gatherings.

Bristol: Critical mass started at 8am with music, banners, and leaflets about May Day. Later people paraded towards Broadmead to the rhythm of samba drumming but one unlucky woman was arrested for criminal damage after touching a police camera with swiss roll!! An army recruitment office was postered with ‘To kill or to be killed, RAF jobs’. Traffic was stopped at Bridewell police station but they had no intentions of releasing comrades.

The carnival continued onto REED job agency where demonstrators entered with drums & banners and stuck ‘On strike’ and ‘1 of May - No job today’ posters to windows. At REED’s accountancy branch, a parody of exploitation was performed a boss whipped a worker whilst sucking her blood to fulfil his greed.

Job centre staff were entertained by drumming until many job seeking police officers appeared.

Outside McDonalds, where police had been waiting since 8am, Nobby Nobby performed some anti-capitalist songs dedicated to the pigs and the corporations. The day ended at the cop shop where the one arrestee was released at 4.30pm.

Birmingham: The police stopped any sizeable protest occurring when first arrivals were immediately surrounded and penned in. About 40 people were in this group and 100+ more were outside police lines. After being read section 14 they were told to take the protest to an underpass. The crowd, tightly surrounded moved off whilst individuals were targeted and arrested. 14 people were arrested; one for having a 4 letter word on his trousers; 9 were charged. However this has not dampened spirits and a campaign to defend the right to protest is now being launched! s26brum@hotmail.com

Norwich: A few hundred gathered in the heart of the city to spontaneously play dance and be merry on a sunny day. The decorated pole provided as much entertainment as the free tea & cake stall though not nearly as much as the police turning up with and installing toilets for everyone!

Glasgow: Over 1200 people participated in peaceful demos.

Dublin: a successful and well-attended demonstration forced the Dublin Stock Exchange to shut early.

Greece: Thousands protested plans by the government to reform social security payments, as well as the threat of globalization.

Poland: In Warsaw over 1200 anarchists marched, stopping at government offices and the US embassy to have a chat.

Slovakia: In the capital, Bratislava hundreds gathered from several revolutionary groups and were visited by many other people who showed interest in ideas of revolutionary anarchism.

Czech Republic: H undreds gathered in Prague with anarchist literature magazines and stickers and a sound system with free vegan burgers. Nazis shouted nationalistic slogans, so the cops protected them and then attacked other protesters with batons and horses.

Pittsburgh, USA: 200 costumed people celebrated with chants, cheers, flags and a mobile maypole. The police seemed unsure of what was going on and eventually 150 riot cops tried to direct the march. 6-10 arrests were made and police used pepper spray and physically beat several demonstrators.

Long Beach, USA: Cops outnumbered protesters & unsurprising there were over 60 arrests. People were shot at, at close range with rubber bullets. Confused bystanders were alarmed at the cops shooting kids for no reason.

Australia: Thousands of May Day protesters took to the streets in Australia on Tuesday, burning political effigies and blockading stock exchange buildings. Protesters linked arms to block the Australian Stock Exchange (ASX) buildings in Sydney and Melbourne chanting “No One In, No One Out”. Police warned they would not tolerate violence and even welded shut metal manhole covers to prevent them being used as missiles. Stock traders were forced to go to work in the dark through underground carparks so the buildings could be closed, an ASX spokesperson stated “...we've made arrangements to protect them and then attacked other protesters with batons and horses.

New Zealand: H undreds of peaceful demonstrators held the Carnival against Capitalism in Wellington, with several well organized groups protesting against privatisation of NZ’s water services, free trade and globalisation.

Costa Rica: Over 10,000 took to the streets of San Jose: from banana workers to housewives. All were demonstrating with their usual spirit of militancy, unity and solidarity. T his unity of workers is growing and all feel confident of new victories.

MAYDAY MONOPOLY ARRESTS

To date (10/05/01) a total of 96 people have been arrested, 92 were arrested on May Day and 4 since, an indication that arrests may continue. Seven people are still being held on remand.

Did you see anyone being arrested or injured on Mayday? If so please contact LDM G, as this information may assist a persons defence or civil claim for damages. Provide the persons name or an accurate time and location of arrest so it can be matched to a particular person. It is easier and quicker if you could send e-mail in the first instance; please include your phone number. Also if you know anyone who was arrested who has not or contacted L D M G please get him her to do so.

There may be further arrests, ‘wanted’ photos have appeared in at least one newspaper. Remember if someone you know appears to be wanted, it is very useful for them to know, but gossiping or otherwise drawing attention to the fact could land someone in prison. If you are arrested DON’T admit it’s you in the picture, you only have to give a name and address, say ‘no comment’ to all other questions and get a good solicitor.

Martyrs, Red for International Workers day
90% for 90%

A group from Manchester boarded a train to Blackpool last month carrying ‘90% for 90%’ cards and a stack of leaflets. They explained to the guard that the passengers were no longer happy just moaning and waiting for something to be done about the state of public transport. Cards and leaflets were distributed, the idea being to pay no more than 10% or show the card in solidarity with the call for a 90% reduction in fares to bring about the 90% cut in greenhouse gases needed to halt climate change. No ticket-check took place and passenger response was great, many wishing they hadn’t already bought tickets. On the return journey one passenger used his card on the spot as he hadn’t bought a ticket and the guard nodded and walked on; he was over the moon!

World car free day

Critical Mass Bristol

During a Critical Mass cycle ride in Bristol on World car free day, April 19th, a taxi driver knocked down a cyclist. The police response was to arrest the cyclist for allegedly causing criminal damage to the taxi!! Apart from the negativity of the one arrest, the cycle protest went really well with about 250 people of all ages taking part using a variety of transport including cycles, walking, skateboards, and scooters. Musical entertainment was provided with drums, brass instruments, and a load speaker hooked up to the back of a bike. One or two irate car drivers irresponsibly drove at speed through the crowd knocking into bikes. But in general the protest was peaceful, musical, good-natured and managed to block off a major roundabout and one of the main roads.

Unnatural history

London RTS mischievously de-branded the BP sponsored Ecology exhibition at the Natural History Museum. Timed to coincide with the BP AGM, activists posed as smooth talking BP tour guides while others heckled them with questions such as “how can you claim to be ‘beyond petroleum’ while increasing oil production by 5%”, “why do anti-BP activists in Colombia get threatened and killed by paramilitaries” and “how does drilling for oil in the Arctic fit the new ‘green’ image”. Elsewhere in the Museum the showpiece animated Tyrannosaurus Rex was given a fetching new coat with the message ‘Climate change killed me, don’t let it happen to you’. Contact RTS 07811 636263.

Our food our future

In response to the exclusivity of the ‘Agriculture 2020’ conference (£300 a ticket) hosted by the John Innes Centre Norwich (April 18th-20th), a group of ‘up for a party’ anti-GM activists held their ‘everyone invited’ bash at the Sainsbury Centre. This happened on the very same evening as 120 ‘Ag 2020’ delegates held their swanky meal. Around 40 people drummed, whistled, and danced beside a large window (40x100ft) just feet away from the diners who tried hard to ignore the outside antics. A 40x15ft “Our Food Our Future” banner unfurled itself from the top of the window which seemed to strengthen their resolve to ignore the demo. Though after nearly two hours of dancing and message writing some did eventually crack and acknowledged that the outside party was considerably better than their own.

GM protests Wales

200+ people gathered outside Castle Cenlas farm in Mathry, Pembrokeshire on April 28th to protest plans to plant GM Cenlas farm in Mathry, Pembrokeshire on April 28th to protest plans to plant GM crops. Two fields on the farm owned by former Tony M P Tony M arlow are due to be used soon. Organic farmers and residents were among furious protesters whose livelihoods will be threatened by contamination. Yellow biodegradable helium-filled balloons were released to support their claim that winds will carry pollen from the farm into the surrounding countryside.

GM decontamination

Genetic Engineering Network has received reports of 2 crop trashings in late April, both 100% destroyed. The tests were of 2 of 9 National Seed List trials and if allowed to continue, the winter oil seed rape would have been closer to commercialisation. NSL trials are normally quite small and serve the purpose of moving a given seed variety further through the regulatory system. The sites were Piccotts End, TL 054 104 and Albury, Hertfordshire, TL 423 234. GEN 020 7690 0626, genetics@gn.apc.org

DETR biotech demo

On March 30th a demo as held outside the biotech unit of the DETR in London, calling them to immediately halt agricultural tests. Banners were held and leaflets handed out to passers-by and to DETR staff. Disinfectant was sprayed across the entrance and staff were asked to walk through it. A statement and letter written by farmers was handed in and questions were asked as to why the essential GM trials were being continued when all other activities in the countryside were being stopped.

Claire gets short crust

International Development Secretary Clare Short, received her just desserts from the Biotic Baking Brigade at a meeting in Bangor, North Wales. The king size custard pie was delivered, at 7pm on March 5th, in recognition of Ms. Short’s disservice to the world’s poor. The trickledown effect was well demonstrated by the gooey concoction of fair trade bananas, short crust pastry, and other organic ingredients. Agent Custard commented: ‘Clare Short’s bananas policies fly in the face of ministerial promises to help the world’s poor and protect the environment.’ A woman has been charged with a public order offence in relation to the pieing.

Fans and followers of the AU will have noticed we simply didn’t get it together in April. We’d love to have a great excuse, but unfortunately we don’t. A big sorry to everyone, particularly folks who rushed us features or had events that got missed because of the delay. Oops. We’ve now received counselling, aversion therapy and a nice cuppa and will try to do better in the future.

CAAT action network
Campaign Against Arms Trade has launched an action network to encourage and facilitate NVDA on arms trade related issues. The network may function in three ways: 1. Directly organising NVDA; 2. Giving support to regional groups who are/would like to organise NVDA in their area; 3. Setting up a phone tree to enable a quick activist response to arms trade issues. The idea of the network is to be flexible and to enable as many people to take part as possible. “Any political movement that does not support its political internees is a sham movement” Ojore Lutalo, political prisoner
PEOPLES’ GLOBAL ACTION: WE ARE EVERYWHERE...

Peoples' Global Action (PGA) is a worldwide network for communication and co-ordination between grassroots social movements and all those fighting the destruction of humanity and planet by capitalism and the present social order. Emerging from the catalyst of the zapatista-inspired ‘encuentros’ in 1996/97, there have been two PGA global conferences since its’ conception: Geneva Feb ‘98, preceding the G8 and WTO meetings; and in Bangolore, India Aug ‘99 before the Seattle WTO meeting. The PGA network has been a key force behind the Global Days of Action and ‘anti-globalisation’ events of recent years.

PGA is a co-ordination tool not an organisation, it has no members or constituted legal identity, no central funds or spokespersons; and relies on the grassroots movements and group themselves for its’ continued existence. Conferences are organised by a rotating group of movement ‘convenors’. Convenors are appointed at each global conference and drawn from all continents and social sectors. The next global conference in Bolivia, Sept 2001, will be hosted by peasant and domestic worker unions and will follow a number of regionally organised PGA meetings since its conception: Geneva Feb ‘98, preceding the G8 and WTO meetings; and in Bangolore, India Aug ‘99 before the Seattle WTO meeting. The PGA network has been a key force behind the Global Days of Action and ‘anti-globalisation’ events of recent years.

PGA ‘decisions’ and the relations between ‘north and south’ were also put under further scrutiny in trying to decide consensus: everyone waving their hands and laughing. While the next WTO meeting in impossible-to-get-to Qatar in November raised the prospect of a truly decentralised day of action ( tho’ interestingly a survey of the meeting showed ‘summit-hopping’ to be largely a media invention. Most people present had been to only one reasonably local ( ‘global action’). Ongoing communications structure work, a european network focussed on countering movement repression, and a myriad of other plans and proposals all found expression over a few days and a drink or two in Milan.

PGA Milan special report

The PGA euro-meet on the 24/25 March, brought together over 300 activists from around 80 social and ecological action groups from across Europe and the world, for discussion and to plan future co-ordination. The conference was called for by Ya Basta! and Reclaim the Streets, the current and past euro-convenors of the PGA network and hosted by YB in the Leoncavello social centre in Milan, Italy. Leoncavello itself is an impressive place - a gigantic ex-industrial complex squatted and run by its’ users and just one of around 10 in Milan alone. Across Italy there are over 100 social centres of different shapes, sizes and affiliations - an inspiring legacy of a vibrant political grassroots. Not that there aren’t problems - there seems to be distinct antagonisms between Italian radical groups and very few from Italy other than Ya Basta! activists attended the meeting. There weren’t many groups present from the east of Europe either, which showed the extent to which such gatherings are often limited to those who can afford them, and so the importance of economic solidarity in the organising of such ‘global’ meetings.

The composition of the ‘anti-capitalist/ globalisation movement’ was highlighted in various ways throughout the weekend. One of the most important and intense discussions during the main assemblies for instance, was on gender. This erupted after incidents of harassment took place during a huge party at the centre on Saturday night, but reflected deep concerns about gender relations within the ‘anti-capitalist’ movement and PGA specifically. Proposals to integrate gender equality into PGA structures and to take the ‘issue’ back to our localities were well received, but it’s a moot point for all European radical groups that our ‘networks’ are predominantly male, white, and young. Another ‘issue’ was the attendance of authoritarian groups like the UK’s Workers Power and SWP. Their participation was opposed by nearly all of the other groups present, still the problems around similar groups’ involvement in PGA were never really explored or resolved. The processes of PGA ‘decisions’ and the relations between ‘north and south’ were also put under further scrutiny in trying to decide European participation in the global PGA conference in Bolivia.

More positively, as well as approaching such important and difficult discussions, the meeting offered the space generally and in innumerable ‘working groups’ where the various radical networks in Europe could cross paths, without tear gas and water cannons, and explore commonalities on which to build future understanding and action. Organisers in Scandinavia planning action against the EU meetings were able to share ideas with anti-G8 organisers in Italy; Spanish NoBorder networks with activists fighting repression in Columbia; climate change campaigners in Germany with EF lers from the Czech republic. A number of ‘days of action’ around Europe and ways of tying them thematically together were discussed with plans for ‘caravans’ linking the various events. One of the themes suggested - a call for ‘global citizen rights’ was misheard as ‘citizen riots’ and arguably received total consensus: everyone waving their hands and laughing. While the next WTO meeting in impossible-to-get-to Qatar in November raised the prospect of a truly decentralised day of action ( tho’ interestingly a survey of the meeting showed ‘summit-hopping’ to be largely a media invention. Most people present had been to only one reasonably local ( ‘global action’). Ongoing communications structure work, a european network focussed on countering movement repression, and a myriad of other plans and proposals all found expression over a few days and a drink or two in Milan.

While the meeting was on the whole too loosely structured and too short, and accentuated most of the obvious failings of global networking, still the attempt to connect and co-ordinate across cultures, languages, boundaries and borders was and is of crucial importance. Paradoxically, within this growing global network, it’s often in the smaller settings and incidental moments that the most fruitful connections are made. In this very real human sense, beyond any written declarations and decisions, the PGA european meeting can only be seen as a stunning success. With similar regional PGA meetings planned for North American and Aotearoa (down-under) and a worldwide conference in Bolivia in September, as well as related mobilisations and events, Peoples’ Global Action may yet realise the possibilities of its’ name.

Combat Climate Chaos!
90% for 90% - GET THE CARD - SHOW THE GUARD

A call for a 90% cut in public transport fares … to make public transport affordable … to start making changes … that bring the 90% cut in greenhouse gases needed to halt climate change.

Are you sick of high public transport fares while pollution causes record levels of asthma in children, and the floodwaters rise? Public transport is neither affordable nor a high quality service – for passengers or for workers. Meanwhile, scientists say that to stop extreme weather events and catastrophic climate change we have to cut greenhouse gases (the gases that contribute to climate change) by as much as 90%.

Road travel is one of the fastest growing sources of carbon dioxide, the main greenhouse gas. Getting people off roads and onto a decent and affordable public transport system is more than a nice idea – it’s essential for survival. Tired of hearing government rhetoric over the railways, and seeing no commitment to tackling climate change, people are taking action.

‘90% for 90%’ is a call for a public transport system run in the interests of passengers and workers, not profit, and available to all, regardless of income.

You might refuse to pay more than 10%. You might show the card in support of the call. You might leaflet other passengers.

People have started carrying the 90% for 90% card on trains around the UK:

- a great day out in Blackpool was had by all, after a group of 90%ers from Manchester carried the card, showed the guard, and spent the journey talking about the state of the railways and leafleting other passengers, receiving a really positive response

- an individual travelled from the north to the south west of England, negotiating with the guard an equivalent ticket for approximately 10% of the full fare

- on a journey to Oxford another couple dealt with a very nice but over-officious guard who gave them penalty fare tickets and refused to talk about anything ‘political’

- one 90%er spoke at a local RMT branch meeting, distributed materials and talked about climate change. She hopes to meet again with public transport workers.

Of course getting on to public transport doesn’t mean that climate change would immediately stop, but it would be a start. Even if just the first step we must find different ways of living and working, ways that end our dependence on fossil fuels, and that stop the floodwaters from taking people’s homes, from Yorkshire to Mozambique. Ways that are relevant to how people live, not just economic growth.

International talks on climate change are getting nowhere. Plans include ‘carbon trading’ – setting up a trading system for greenhouse gases – but within a framework of big business continuing to make their profits while the poor stay poor (see http://www.xs4all.nl/~ceo/greenhouse/index.html for more info). Depressing though that is, it shows that it is up to us to define what we want and what we need, to make our lives better.

NATIONAL DAY OF ACTION 16th JULY

The next UN climate change conference takes place in Bonn, Germany, starting on July 16th. Governments from across the world will again bang their heads together to work out how to disguise a fetish for continued economic growth as a concern to stop the planet burning up, by creating whole new market opportunities.

Legislators don’t lead. Join the national day of action on July 16th, the first day of Bonn, and demonstrate that different ways of living and working come from us taking action based in our own lives - that includes finding accessible and affordable ways of moving around.

Join in the national day of action by getting together with a group in your area, speaking to local public transport workers, and planning a 90% for 90% day trip: to the seaside (get there before it gets to you); to the countryside (if it’s open); to view your nearest oil refinery – the possibilities are endless.

Rising Tide Tour May/June 2001

The Rising Tide Tour set off in May, inspiring action around climate change, seeking solutions based in our own lives; and building up pressure before the next UN climate talks this July. It features an evening of information and entertainment around climate change, workshops, theatre and support for direct action. Contact climatechaos@yahoo.com for local details of each stop.

Victory against Tarmac
For 3 years the ‘No Tarmac Quarries At Bestwood’ campaign has been fighting planning permission for 2 sand quarries in Nottingham. Tarmac has now given up and agreed to hand over all the land to Bestwood Country Park. This campaign has been organised in the local communities in a decentralised and non-hierarchical way. People did everything from letter writing to sabotage and shutting roads to disrupting AGM’s. Although very much a locally based campaign it wouldn’t have got this far without the support, solidarity and hard work of folk in the wider EF/RTS network. They send out a big thank you! Remember kids, Direct Action works!

Aberdeen
Protesting Gap’s use of sweatshop labour in advance of a store opening in Aberdeen, Grampian EF! held a very successful action in the city centre on M arch 10th in front of what will be the store. Wielding placards urging the public to boycott the company’s products, protesters distributed 800 leaflets to shoppers with favourable response, collecting also signatures on a petition. Further protests are planned to coincide with the store opening in July. Contact Grampian EF! PO box 248, Aberdeen, AB25 1JE, grampianearthfirst@hotmail.com

Nottingham
There was an occupation/demo at GAP in Nottingham on 30th M arch. The police turned up, no arrests, lots of leaflets given out and GAP were forced to lock one of their doors to keep people out! M ore may be planned. Contact N otts EF! 0845 458 9595.

Sheffield
On M arch 2nd a new GAP store opened in Sheffield. People performed street theatre commemorating the felling of ancient Redwood forests by the Fisher family, founders and owners of GAP. Others held banners saying ‘GAP sucks’ and ‘sweatshops’. An info stall was set up with a big banner that read ‘Greed And Poverty’. Around 1000 leaflets were handed out to customers, some of whom

Birmingham
On M arch 17th the fashion police arrived at the Gap store in Birmingham to read the riot act over the company’s use of sweatshop labour. Once the formalities were over the sound system was unleashed and activists blocked the store for 20 minutes effectively shutting it down. With over 90 people in attendance, many of them on their 1st action, the afternoon was an exciting and empowering experience for everyone involved.

After the action the S26 collective held an open planning meeting for Birmingham M abyDay which reinforced the group’s optimism that things in Birmingham are on the up. Contact S26 collective, 07980 415577, PO Box 9417, Birmingham, B13 9WA, s26brum@hotmail.com.

BSL marches
Over 700 people made the first Manchester march for the official recognition of British Sign Language an exciting, colourful and diverse day. Society treats the 70,000 people that have BSL as their first or only language as inferior citizens: deaf kids are forced to try to learn English; highly controversial cochlea implants are pushed to ‘cure’ deafness and sold at a profit; many people are not given the choice to learn BSL.

A samba band joined the march and also a hearing and a deaf town crier (with a flashing light instead of a bell). One arrest was made when 50 people sat in a jetty where a French Destroyer was berthed. Although 3 were soon arrested, 4 climbed high up on the Destroyer, locked on, and dropped a banner. Arrests were made for Breach of Peace. See diary for more dates. Contact 01436-820901

WTO tug of war
Campaigners from World Development Movement and People and Planet staged a tug of war outside the North East’s Government Office, Welbar House, Newcastle on March 20th to represent the potential WTO trade agreement that threatens poor nations as well as local public services in the UK. Tuggers dressed as obese, cigar smoking business types competed against ordinary service workers and people from developing countries. Government officials were asked to take sides in a blatantly rigged situation. ‘Well all rely on clean water, health, education and public transport and like the tug of war this agreement is rigged in favour of multinational companies’ claimed one tugger.

Faslane frolics
To celebrate International Woman’s Day, a women’s weekend was held at Faslane Peace Camp. On Saturday March 10th a 3 feet high slogan ‘Women Unite for a World Without War’ was woven into a fence. The next morning 7 women ran through a hole cut in a fence to reach the jetty where a French Destroyer was berthed. Although 3 were soon arrested, 4 climbed high up on the Destroyer, locked on, and dropped a banner. Arrests were made for Breach of Peace. See diary for more dates. Contact 01436-820901

Mink farm victory
Cornyhaugh Mink Farm near Newcastle announced it was closing last week after a 3½-year, high-profile, campaign by Newcastle AR Coalition. They persevered through an intensive campaign: investigations, protests, public meetings, harassment trials, police hassle, violence by farmer and workers, and with little support from activists outside the area. The determination of this campaign should be encouraging to other activists. Different tactics work in different situations and in this case they achieved the desired aim: farm closure.

Noise for Mark
About 30 people gathered on March 24th outside Wakefield Prison where anarchist prisoner Mark Barnsley is being held. An enormous racket was made and occasionally sounded quite rhythmic! All types of drums, whistles and foghorns were used and cooking pots were beaten into some interesting shapes.

Although Mark was allowed visitors, it was yet another ‘closed’ visit behind glass. Mark was still in great spirits despite being on a 24-hour hunger strike and he could hear everything especially the fireworks. 300 leaflets were handed out stating ‘the worse they treat him, the harder we will fight!’ and ‘we will continue to make a noise until he is moved’. Another noise demo is planned for April 22nd, but phone 07944 522001 incase he’s moved.

and finally... if any skateboarders want to send messages of support to boarders in Brum the S26 will happily pass them on, as the council have brought in £50 fines and the threat of arrest to anyone boarding in the city centre. However the actions of the council have only succeeded in radicalising large numbers of teenagers, who came to join in with the action against Gap. This issue of the Action Update is dedicated to Liz, a dear friend and comrade who passed away last month and will be sadly missed. Much respect always.
