Demonstrations and harassment in San Cristóbal, Mexico

On September 10th civil society groups from across Chiapas took to the streets of San Cristóbal to protest at the intimidation, harassment and interrogation of people who work with local organisations. See chiapas.indymedia.org for updates. There have been protests in Barcelona, Geneva, Paris, Madrid, Argentina, the Basque Country, Canada and the United States over the Mexican government’s continued human rights abuses in Chiapas. Suggested actions include organising protests at Mexican Embassies and Consulates, and at the offices and headquarters of companies investing in Chiapas. Zapatista communities are also calling for emergency human rights delegations to Chiapas. See www.chiapaslink.ukgateway.net for information and advice. Some communities have also been forced off their land and are in need of financial support: if you can raise money, e.g. through a benefit night, contact Global Exchange’s Mexico program for more information. Starbucks settlers

Berkeley, California 17th August: About 25 quee settlers, imitating the actions of illegal Israeli settlers in Palestine, descended on Starbucks, claiming Berkeley as “a city without people for without people a city.” The group, organized by Queers Undermining Israeli Terrorism (QUIST), posted a banner proclaiming the cafe “Queerkeley - A Prophecy Fulfilled.” They erected homes, lawn furniture and signs reading “It Works In Palestine, Why Not Here?” and “It’s Ours Because We Say So” and gave patrons tracts explaining their religious claim to the land: “And the Lord saw that the queer people were harred in this land. And the Lord spake unto the prophet Harvey, “You will lead your people across the wide waters unto a new land.” Harvey was fearful, and cried, “How will we cross the wide waters? For they spake unto the prophet Harvey, “You will lead your people across the wide waters unto a new land.” Harvey was fearful, and cried, “How will we cross the wide waters? For they

Russian anti-nuclear actioncamp

In response to the Russian government’s decision to import 20,000 tonnes of high-level radioactive waste, environmental groups organised protest actions, including an action camp, in Siberia. The June camp took place near the prohibited zone around Krasnoyarsk-26, Russia’s largest high-level radioactive waste store and plutonium-producing reactor. Early in 2002, local citizens and environmental groups collected nearly 100,000 signatures calling for a vote on whether to ban nuclear waste imports into the region. Serious sabotage and damage committed during an invasion of New Tribal Missions HQ in the UK.

On 11 October more than fifty people took direct action against the New Tribes Mission (NTM) UK Headquarters in Grimsby, in solidarity with resistant indigenous peoples of the Philippines, West Papua and Bougainville. NTM have stated that they intend to preach to every tribe on the planet by 2025, such as the Agta of Northern Luzon and tribes in Mindanao. NTM build airstrips in jungles, have their own planes to ferry first missionaries and then businessmen, Coca-Cola and the military. First comes Christianity and then corporations. The indigenous people of West Papua have declared missionaries one of their 4 biggest threats: they are as responsible for mining or logging companies for ecological and cultural destruction.

The activists visited NTM wearing West Papuan masks, invaded and occupied the offices. They severely outnumbered the missionaries working there. Essential information and equipment was removed which will prove valuable to research for resistance to NTM. Other people sabotaged and damaged essential computer hardware, software and other office equipment. Others argued with workers; others demonstrated outside or in the village nearby with banners. All the protesters left the scene without arrest, although missionaries attempted – and failed – to stop people leaving.

RIO TINo company blockedade

Angelique Aluminium Metals (AAM) at Holyhead, North Wales, was blocked for six hours by 15 people making use of a clapped out minibus and a tripod. The action was in solidarity with the OPM - the Free West Papua Movement. 51% of AAM is owned by the infamous Rio Tinto (RTZ), which has a major interest in the disastrous Grasberg mine in West Papua. The van, laden with two concrete-filled barrels, was towed in at 8.30am before ‘breaking down’ outside the main entrance to the plant. Someone struck the panel through a hole in the side panel and locked onto one of the barrels. The other barrel fell through a hole in the floor of the van, and another person locked on. A long tailback rapidly ensued.

Meanwhile a scaffold tripod was erected at the back entrance to stop anyone slipping out that way. After a couple of hours a previously overgrown third entrance was opened by AAM, allowing light traffic access, but articulated vehicles were prevented from passing for another 3 hours. The activists received support from AAM workers and local contractors. The action carried on into the night, and was un-leafleted. Local TV and newspapers covered the blockade. No arrests were made.

The Grasberg mine is owned by the largest producers of gold and copper in the world. Indonesia gains 20% royalties from it, providing 47% of West Papua’s GDP. The mine has turned the local river system into a poisonous slurry channel. As a result of which hundreds of children have died from copper poisoning, and the river and the trees on its banks are biologically dead. Protests by the local people have been met with severe repression by the Indonesian military, paid for in part by Rio Tinto and supported by their security forces.

November 2002

Earth First! is the use of non-hierarchical organisation and direct action to confront, stop and eventually reverse the forces responsible for the destruction of the Earth and its inhabitants. It is not a cohesive group or campaign rather a convenient banner for those interested in these ideas.

British anti-war activists are setting up a new organisation called the Anti-War Coalition. The group will be based in London and will work to stop the Iraq War and demand an end to US military intervention in Iraq.

We need to build a strong movement of people who are prepared to take direct action against the war. This may mean blocking roads, occupying buildings or engaging in other forms of resistance. We need to be ready to respond quickly and decisively to any attack on the anti-war movement.

Revolution Per Minute has published 'The Rich at Play,' an analysis of hunting with hounds. It concentrates on the historical basis and cultural context, beginning with the Norman Conquest. It then looks at the laws and practices enabling the ruling class to control the populace. The analysis covers the peculiarly non-rural compostition of the Countryside Alliance, and the populist, libertarian politics which it gathers public sympathy for, which portrays it as part of a 'rural' opposition, which never actually exists. The film is 70 minutes long, and includes interviews with leading figures including Charles Simms Africa, Wayne Heaton, Michael Phillips, Delbert Orr, John Bowden and George Vierno Ctr. 0909 Hazen Avenue, Washington DC 20014.

Iraq

Attacks

From a sanctions-breaker

“...as we find ourselves on the verge of another Gulf War it’s easy to forget that the first never ended for the people of Iraq. Twelve years of economic sanctions have compounded the effects of the 1991 war, condemning an entire population to poverty and suffering. According to UNICEF, over 500,000 under-lives have died as a consequence of sanctions.

A dilapidated infrastructure resulted from Allied bombing, and has remained in an appalling state because sanctions deny both physical and economic resources. The result: undrinkable water and raw sewage backed up into peoples’ homes, in a country which had British standard sanitary systems a decade ago. Obesity, once the most common complaint in child health problems, is now replaced by poverty and starvation. 800,000 children under the age of five are chronically malnourished, according to the World Food Program.

The biggest child killer in Iraq over the last twelve years has been diarrhoea and other water contamination related diseases. I’ve watched as young children walked barefoot through human waste in Basra, seen four month old babies dying in front of their mother’s eyes as a result of wasting from diarrhoea.

The Security Council Panel on Humanitarian Issues said in March 1999, “...even if not shown in the aggregate, adverse external factors, especially sanctions, the Iraqi people would not be undergoing such deprivation in the absence of the prolonged measures imposed by the Security Council and the effects of war.”

Denis Halliday and Hans von Sponeck, both former UN Humanitarian co-ordinators, resigned in protest at the sanction regimes, which they’ve called “failed” and “genocidal.”

The humanitarian impact of a war on Iraq under these conditions would be catastrophic, condemning an already suffering nation. A Pentagon administrative officer warned President Clinton in 1998 that the pre-cursor attack plan to Desert Fox would be a “medium case scenario” variant in the deaths of 10,000. If, as in 1991, the attacks targeted vital civilian infrastructure, it would be “an attack on children’s ability to survive” according to Save the Children, and a worse scenario than that above.

According to a UNICEF representative in Iraq, if military action interrupts the distribution of the monthly food ration, which most households in Iraq have an “almost total dependency” upon, it would result in “famine on a large scale.” UN Secretary General Kofi Annan has stated that the collapse of the electrical sector could “potentially dwarf all other difficulties [so far] endured by the Iraqi people.”

The BushBlair ‘dossier of evidence’ provided nothing but conjecture. There are 23 million people in Iraq, the warmest, most loving, compassionate people I’ve ever had the privilege of meeting. With children already dying at epidemic proportions we have to do everything possible to prevent adding to this already fatal cocktail. A war on Iraq would be a gross violation of international law, of decency, of morality and of any democratic process in Britain, with the majority of people across the political divides opposed to a war on Iraq.

Voices in the Wilderness has been running a postal sanctions breaking campaign for some time. People send small packages of medicines or toys to Iraq without applying for an export licence, and use their action as a means of getting the local media to cover the issue. This is a breach of the law on sanctions, and should not be undertaken without due consideration! Contact Voices for a pack, including details of where/what to send, and legal ramifications.

Spy base blockade – sabotage the war effort!

24th October: Sam. Around 20 protestors locked themselves to the gates of Menwith Hill US Spy Base, Yorkshire. The blockade lasted 4½ hours, hitting three scheduled shift changes. Around 1000 staff were turned away on arrival and the base was reduced to essential services only. No arrests were made.

Menwith Hill is a US spy base, monitoring communications in Europe and the Middle East. It is central to intelligence gathering in the so-called ‘War against Terror’ and a key base for the global spy system Echelon. The base is actually US territory, US intelligence officers and military work there as well as support personnel from the UK - in all, 3,000 people. It is being used to identify targets in Iraq and will be used to coordinate bombings when they start.

The action was a massive success. The main gate at Menwith is under construction so access is through two side gates. These, and a disused rear gate, were shut by activists, leaving the base almost completely shut down. The US military even came to have a look - something unheard of at Menwith, they usually stay well away. This is just the beginning... The US and British governments are making war in our names. We need to build an active resistance movement and sabotage their war effort. Indifference is not an option!

Anti-war actions

October 2: the trial of 2 pupils charged with criminal damage at the Atomic Weapons Establishment at Aldermaston was postponed after the prosecution failed to produce evidence that the site, near Reading, had ever been used to produce nuclear weapons. The defence lawyer stated that, under the Anti-Terrorism, Crime and Security Act of 2001, anyone “possessing or producing” a nuclear weapon is “guilty of an offence,” and “liable of conviction to life imprisonment” - unless, under Section 48 of the Act, such possession or production has been authorised by the Secretary of State. Aldermaston has, so far, been unable to produce such authorisation. Pre-trial hearings have been set for a later date.

Ireland, 19 August: activists were arrested at Shannon Airport after protesting its use for fuelling US military aircraft on their way to Europe and the Middle East, often carrying weapons like ‘daisy-cutter’ bombs designed to ‘cleave’ spaces 600m wide of all living beings. Gardaí later told activists that they ‘didn’t know the half of it’ of what went on at the airport at night, and said that jets had recently passed through which even security personnel were not allowed to approach.

Activists disrupted an army promotion and recruitment event at Horsogaards Parade in London which also included the charity Stroke Awareness. They successfully handed out pieces of paper stating ‘no war in Iraq’ and ‘Get fit then go and get killed. ‘Get fit then watch out for the Depleted Uranium’ would have been even more to the point.”
